SUBJECT: TOKYO MEDIA REACTION - IRANIAN NUCLEAR PROGRAM AND BURMA

¶1. LEAD STORIES: There were no Tuesday morning papers because of a press holiday. Most broadcasters gave top coverage to Monday's arrest of an Okinawa-based Marine on suspicion of sexually assaulting a 14-year-old local girl.

¶2. "New Source of Contention with West" The liberal Mainichi's Washington correspondent wrote (2/11): "Iran's decision to test a powerful new centrifugal separator reflects not just Tehran's determination to proceed with nuclear development but also the fact that it has been making steady progress. It is possible that such a test may develop into a new source of contention with the U.S. and Europe, which are demanding that Iran cease enriching uranium.... Because a successful test would enable Iran to replace the existing separator with a new model without radically changing the layout of the plant, this represents a rapid upgrading of Iran's ability to enrich uranium."

¶3. "Cosmetic Shift to Civilian Rule" The top-circulation, moderate Yomiuri reported from Bangkok (2/11): "Saturday's announcement by the Burmese junta of a national referendum on a draft constitution, to be followed by a general election ... represents Rangoon's policy of going forward with a 'cosmetic' shift to civilian power in defiance of calls by the international community to include domestic democratic forces. Concerns are mounting that UN mediation efforts to promote true democratization in Burma will falter."
